In the JOURNAL of to-day we surrender a large part of our space to the cogent and masterly answer of the Presilent. But this our readers will not regret. The paper is a memorable one. It will live a glorious life in history.

When we stated last Tuesday that the anti-McCardle bill must become a law unless it was returned the day before, we were under the impression that the constitutional period in the case would expire that day; but in this we erred. The bill in fact was returned Wednesday, with the President's veto, over which it was no doubt passed yesterday. The veto message, which appeared yesterday in our telegraphic columns, is a short and sensible paper, though we question if it goes as far as sound law would warrant. It, however, is unanswerable. The ground it assumes is impregnable. There will be no attempt to answer it, except by the brute force of numbers; and thus ere now it doubtless has been answered. Mr. Trumbull, we observe, is represented as saying that the bill does not apply to the McCardle case; but he must not be understood as saying this in the sense in which it is said by conservatives. He holds, as he contended before the Supreme Court, that the Circuit Court had no jurisdiction of the McCardle case under the act of February, 1867, and that its efficials throughout the country and the case, accordingly, should be dismissed abroad, whenever it professes to pay its by the Supreme Court. Assuming the armies, whenever it professes to pay pencorrectness of his position, the McCardle sions, and whenever it professes to pay case, as it did not arise under that act, of any private claims of any kind whatever. course cannot be affected by the repeal of any part of it; but the same reason that would put it beyond the scope of the repeal would also put it beyond the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court. He simply means that the bill does not take the case from the jurisdiction of the Court try might place the government in the atbecause the Court has not got jurisdiction of the case anyhow. What he says Our legal currency is now worth nearly, amounts to no more than this. But the law of the question amounts to cause the case is within the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court, and the jurisdiction has actually attached. The bill is an unconstitutional interference of Congress with the exercise of judicial power. Besides, it takes from McCardle the remedy that he had when he was arrested, and herein falls under the constitutional prohibitien of ex-post-facto laws. The bill does not apply to the McCardle case because as to that case the bill is plainly nd grossly unconstitutional.

chapter of secret history connected with the rebellion, of deep interest, which has never seen the light. It is a record of two years' operations of a secret order in the interest of the rebellion, known as the "Brotherhood of the Endless Chain." It is prepared by as officer of an Illinois regiment, who, during the years of 1862-63, served the Government in the control of the co capacity of spy upon the actions of this Order in Kentucky and Tennessee, and of which Order he became an accentral which Order he became an accepted mem-ber. The narrative is a detailed account of his experiences and observations; a record of exciting adventures, hair-breadth escapes, and daring deeds of the agents of this Order in and around our army, While the account is truthful throughout, its interest will be found fully equal to that of the most exciting work of fiction.—Chicago Republican.

This is one of the most miserable of all conceivable humbugs. It is a thing got up to dupe, to cheat, to swindle, to obtain money under false pretences. The author of it, and the aider and abettor in it. richly deserve to be arrested and sentenced to condign punishment. There were no two years' operations of a secret Order in the interest of the rebellion in Kentucky and Tennessee, known as the "Brotherhood of the Endless Chain." Does any human being, with any more sense than a sick ass, suppose that any such Order could have existed for any such length of time, or even for one tenth part of the time, without becoming notorious? Would'nt there have been hundreds to expose its existence and character? Is it possible that even its name would have been till now unheard of? Who of all the members of the supposed Order were arrested for their 'alleged connection with it? And why were not all its members arrested if the Government had spies to work inside of it? And why did the Government, and every body privy to the existence and the doings of the Order, never divalge their knowledge, in order to put the loyal portion of the people upon their guard? Such devices as this, for humbugging the public and making money out of popular credulity, are disgraceful. The time has come when public feeling should be soothed by truth, not inflamed by falseand Kentucky "claim indemnity for the loss of their slaves, and both in default of which stand pledged to repudiate their share of the national debt." Forney is perhaps the most shameless political falsi-fier in either hemisphere.

THE JUNIUS LETTERS .- The old Junius THE JUNIUS LETTERS.—Ine oid Junius controversy has been revived again in England, and a Mr. Hayward has reprinted an article from Frazer's Magazine, which is attracting much attention. It is said to be a decisive enswer to the arguments of Lord Macaulay and Mr. Merivale in favor of the authorship of Sir Philin Francia.

Philip Francis.

Mr. Hayward quotes from the letters of Junius to prove that the true author must have been older than Sir Philip Francis; for he claims to have been a witness of the great parliamentary battles, in the ministry of Walpole, which took place in Francis's childhood. He avers, also, that the remotest resemblance can be not the remotest resemblance can be traced between the handwriting of Junius's manuscripts and of Francis, and that there is no more resemblance in their style. He thinks that the ability of Fransiyle. He thinks that the ability of Francis was unequal to the composition of the letters, but that he was quite willing to enjoy the credit of their authorship in the silence of the satirist, who was ashamed to avow his name. The secret has certainly been well kept, for if Sir Philip Francis cannot wear the laurel, it will probably remain unappropriated to the Francis cannot wear the laurer, it will probably remain unappropriated to the atest ages .- Exchange. In respect to the claim of Sir Philip Francis, we quite agree with Mr. Hayward, who, however, does not appear to set up a claim on behalf of anybody else.

Mr. Hayward, it seems, contends that the true author of Junius must have been older than Sir Philip Francis. We have no doubt of this; as we reckon it, he was about thirty-two years older, Lord Chatham, who was Junius as sure as he lived, having been born in 1708, whereas Francis was born in 1740, the very year in which Chatham made his celebrated reply to Horatio Walpole. As to "the great parliamentary battles in the ministry of Walpole", it must be admitted that Mr. Hayward's "bill" is filled by Chatham, who certainly was "a witness" of those magnificent conflicts.

Though we firmly believe that Lord Chatham was Junius, we by no means suppose, however, that Francis had nothing to do with the letters. He no doubt was extensively "mixed up" with them, and was one of the few depositaries of the secred of their authorship. He could have divulged the secret, if he pleased, and, in cur opinion, he would have divulged it in spite of all pledges to the contrary, if the authorship had not been ascribed to himself, whereby his vanity came to the relief of his fidelity, a reinforcement upon which the true author probably counted when he deposited the secret. We may

The credit of the country is depressed the credit of the country is depressed because of grave doubts about the integrity of the people. A large party propose to have the government repudiate its contracts by cancelling its bonds with irredeemable paper, every issue of which will-subtract from the value of the whole.

— Chicago Tribune. The currency of the country is exactly what seven years of radical power have made it. If to pay the bonds of the bondbolders with a currency which radicalism bas made a legal tender is repudiation, then the government is all the time repudiating-repudiating every day, every hour, and every minute. It repudiates whenever it makes payment, so-called, to any one of the hundreds of thousands of paid for their bonds with it at par. Now a good deal more than this. The bill what sort of repudiation would it be for does not apply to the McCardie case, be- the government to pay them for their bonds double what they got them for from the government?

Wendell Phillips, who, perhaps, has more brains than any other man of his party, says, in a late letter to the Anti-Slavery Standard, "of course fidelity to the negro must be our first and decisive test of any man's fitness for the Presidency." That's it exactly. It is the ruling idea of the Radical party. The first test, the decisive test of any man's fitness for the Presidency of the United We shall commence, in the Republican States, is fidelity to the negro. THE CAPTIVE EAGLE.

BY GEO. D. PRENTICE. Well, here you must abide,

But yet, methinks, you hardly show the pride

How were you captured? Nay,
Turn not away your keen eyes as in shame,
I've heard the whole of your queet tale to-day—
You're not at all to blame, O'er Mississippi's tide, With broad wings gleaming like a fairy dream, You hovered searchingly till you espied A huge fish in the stream.

A moment you were seen To pause, then shoot down like a gleam of light, And in your startled prey your talons keen Were fastened very tight.

You tried to drag him out, He tried with equal strength to drag you in.
And long the raging conflict was in doubt,
The strife 'twixt wing and fin.

You yielded up the cause,
And strove from your position to escape
Alas! you could not extricate your claws
Yours was an awkward scrape.

You rode wherever leaped your catfish steed You had no bit and rein to check and guide His course and furlous speed. Your race have e'er been deemed Majestic cleavers of the sky's blue track, But ah! a most ungraceful thing you seemed Upon a fish's back.

Some "boys of larger growth"

Looked from their skiff upon the stirring sport, And took you into port. But I'll not keep your wing Shut out and fettered from the breeze at I will your prison-door wide open filing— You're free! old bird, good-bye! Ah well and bravely done!

Far, far above, I see your lessening form,
Your bright and burning eye upon the sun,
Your wing upon the storm.

Yes, bravely done and well! You're fit to be the emblem of our flag, Our mighty country's enemies to quell— Bird of the wind and crag!

Farewell, old monarch-bird! Choose wheresoe'er you will your tounding courses,
But I would breathe to you one little word— Beware of catfish-horses.

Kete Robinson, Cora S., Bermuda, Nick Loworth. Norman, Major Anderson, and Empire. THE RIVER AND WEATHER.

The RIVER AND WEATHER.

The river continues to fall rapidly with 11 feet in the canal. The weather turned quite cold night before last, and early yesterdsy morning a hard rain set in which fell at short intervals all day with a fair prospect of its continuance all night. At 9 P. M. the mercury stood at 46 and the harometer at 29 25 ometer at 29.25.

PORT ITEMS. Our young and handsome friend Chary Swain, well known on the river, has hanged his base to United States Hotel ar, where he will be pleased to see his old friends. Charley knows how to mix a cocktail" better than anybody, and has omething extra to make it of. He pro-ooses to fight it out on that line "all sumner," if not longer.
Yesterday was a dull day on the wharf sa well as elsewhere. The Legal Tender

trips.

The St. Louis and Quincy Packet Com-pany have bought the hull and cabin of pany have bought the hull and cabin of the J. C. Swon, and will reconstruct out of them a first-class wharfboat, with office, large sitting-room for passengers, and other conveniences. The price paid was $4,000. The hull is 250 feet long, 42 feet beam, and will be cut down three feet, leaving its depth five and a half feet.

A letter from Chicago, in relation to the late meeting of railroad men and boatmen, says of the Northwest Transportation Company, that it has been established by Eastern and Western capitalists, that Joab Lawrence has been elected its President, Geo. T. The steamer Ingomar sunk yesterday afternoon about 4 o clock, seven miles be-low Willsonville, Obio. She was backing out from shore and ran against a rock. She lies near the shore, and will be raised. Her load consisted of oil, grain, and metal. Her load consisted of oil, grain, and metal. The passengers were transferred to the Gray Eagle and brought to Cincinnati.

The Evansville Journal says: The Mayflower was filling up pretty fast, and would have a fair trip out. And then adds: The lady who added one to the population, on board the Mayflower, on Monday, was conveyed to the Sherwood House yesterday morning, and was, as the ise yesterday morning, and was, as the ladies would say, "real smart," and the baby bids fair to become famous. They received the utmost kindness from the peple of the Mayflower and the wives of some of the officers.

How an English Captain Settled a point of Customs Law.— The New York Times' Mexican correspondent says that a great deal of excitement was created at Vera Cruz by the recent departure of the English mail steamer Danube, Capt. West. The custom-house authori-ties had received information that a shipment of money by this steamer set forth as an export of $20,000 actually consisted of $20,000 ounces, or $320,000. The Captain of the Port immediately proceeded aboard the ship and demanded to examine the packages and ascertain the truth. Capt. West retused to allow this proceed-ing, stating that he had signed bills of lading, that he was therefore responsible lading, that he was therefore responsible for the safe keeping of the packages, and that he would not allow them to be interfered with. The Captain of the Port, after using every means to accomplish his purpose, finally informed Capt. West that he would return to the shore and consult higher authorities, and that to present the accomplising of the ship. vent the surreptitious sailing of the ship he should take the pilot with him. Capt. West immediately ordered his engineer to put on full steam, and at once, and without further ceremony, started to sea, with the Custom House officers, boat's crew, and all hands on board. Capt. West kept the Mexicans in custody till about three miles out, when he allowed them to depart and make their way back as best they could. A heavy sea was running, and the boat they occupied was in imminent danger of being swamped. Some trouble is anticipated on the return of the steamer to Vera Cruz.

FOR NEW ORLEANS. A. McGILL.....ADOLPH MARTIN......

Very recently Captain John S. Davis, Jr, of New Albany, who was a gallant soldier in the recent war, a most estimable gentleman, deceased. Fully aware of the uncertainties of life, he had been wise enough to secure a policy in that admirably conducted institution, the Southern Mutual Life Insurance Company, of this city. No sooner had the secretary Judob city. No sooner had the secretary, Judge L. T. Thustin, heard of the death, than he promptly forwarded the sum of five thou sand dollars to Mrs. Davis. This is characteristic of the liberal and energetic management of this institution, which is controlled entirely by our own citizens, and is peculiarly worthy of their support. FOR CINCINNATI. tually it must amply repay every one who invests in its policies.

We subjoin the receipt of Mrs. Davis, as well as the testimonial of Hon. John S. Davis, of New Albany, who is one of the Therefore they were not afraid of the Supreme Court. The presumption was that the Supreme Court would obey the law which was clearyou the side of Congress.

Mr. Howard asked what the charge against Mr. McCardle had been.

Mr. Johnson said the proceeding was on four grounds: Disturbing the public reace, inciting insurrection, libeling a ces, and date and place of birth of the candicastimonials as to character and qualifications. Extimonials as to character and qualifications. Purplished. If the applicant has been in richeractic of the properties of the properti Mr. Stewart asked why, if the Supreme Court had jurisdiction over reconstruction and the power to declare that the war had ceased, it did not exercise it before. If ceased, it did not exercise it before. If the act could be construed to make military chieftains of them, the sooner it could be repealed the better.

Mr. Johnson said the Constitution provided that the habeas corpus should not be suspended in time of peace, and the Supreme Court had decided in Michigan that military courts could not try a civilian when peace prevailed in the United of colored citizens in the South from oppression.

Mr. Johnson replied that it was comprehensive in character, and covered all such cases. He entertained no doubt that, in the opinion of the Supreme Court, the case was before them under the act of 1867. He had great confidence in the ability of the Chief Justice, who, he thought, had made that point clear. He regretted the passage of the bill without sufficient knowledge on the part of the Senators, who, if they had understood it, would have opposed it. On eulogizing the Supreme Court must hold to their authority to decide upon the constitutionality of the laws or prove recreant to their trust. If Congress were left unrestricted, despotism would certainly be the result.

Mr. Saulsbury remarked that Congress, may11 dly 5th & Walnut & 15th & Portland av. DOCTOR WILBER would certainly be the result.

Mr. Saulsbury remarked that Congress, to reach one solitary case, were seeking to repeal the inestimable privilege of habeas corpus. If Congress insisted upon keeping the leaden cloud of despotism over the South the high court of the people would in November set aside the verdict.

THE COMPANY PERMANENT. Heretofore every new telegraphic enterprise oner or later been absorbed by the domi nopply; but the third section of the act of ess which confers upon this Company its vi franchise absolutely requires it to mainta narte and independent existence. [See the low.]

THE OLD SYSTEM. THE OLD SYSTEM.
Under it telegraphic companies have been organized by a few wealthy capitalists; these companies have been consolidated under one Board of Management; they are made up of opposition companies, with perailel, lateral, and useles rottes, costly to maintain. Their liabilities are heavy, and they employ a multiplicity of officer of the companies. With their Capital Stock largely watered amounting now in the aggregate to Forty-two Millions of Dollars, they seek to monopolize the business at exorbitant rates, and thus benefit the few at the expense of many.
